Donovan Eyes Race for Dems

James B. Donovan, Brooklyn lawyer who arranged the Soviets' release of U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers and is now engaged in similar efforts for the 1,170 Cuban invasion prisoners, yesterday admitted that he might be interested in the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate.

"Between now and the state convention in mid-September I intend to confer with various leaders of the Democratic Party throughout the state," he said. "My sole interest will be to determine whether my availability for Senator or Governor could aid in uniting the party for victory in November."

He said he has been in continuous communication with the Castro government and may visit Havana if he finds it necessary.
